MicroWorld Releases Beta Version of eScan 10

CRN Network, Nov. 18 2008, 1300 hrs

Anti-virus vendor, MicroWorld has released the beta version of eScan 10, its latest antivirus and content security solution.

On the release, Govind Rammurthy, Managing Director of MicroWorld, commented, "The IT sector is continually at risk for malicious attacks resulting into vital requirement of modern reliable IT security solutions and release of eScan 10 is a step forward in this direction which will definitely add great value to the field of information security."

According to the company, eScan 10 provides enhanced protection against viruses, worms, trojans, spyware and other security threats and also protect from threats infecting via email, web downloads, and chatting by its faster and heuristic scanning ability. It also features an inbuilt advanced firewall that prevents network-based attacks.

Rammurthy further added, "The new version as compared to version 9 includes a range of technical advancements, a host of proactive technologies and advanced algorithms, that substantially enhances the software's functionality and scanning rate. It also comes with an enhanced user interface which navigates all types of users with varied level of technical knowledge."
