MicroWorld AntiVirus Toolkit Utility (MWAV)

Anti-virus products traditionally do scanning of entire hard-drives to check files for viruses. But the ever increasing size of hard-disks and the millions of files that these hard-disks can store makes it practically impossible for anti-virus products to scan all the files within practical time limits. Since Microsoft's registry is not fully documented, anti-virus software often fail to catch viruses, which appear to resurface even after successful disinfections.

This is exactly what the MWAV toolkit attempts to solve. It searches deep into the registry, even looking for entries, which are normally not documented, and within minutes detects and removes viruses. The utility can also remove invalid and dead links inside the registry, which often cause unnecessary warnings to fill up the event logs.

The new added features will make MWAV more potent are:

1. New features to detect Porno Dialers, Adware, Spyware and Riskware.
2. MWAV can now updated itself automatically so that it can scan for all the new viruses.
3. Facility to activate itself for removing/disinfecting worms and viruses.
4. Facility to weed out worms that attach themselves to popular browsers like Internet Explorer that are not detected by popular antivirus products by using deep registry scanning

The toolkit utility can also activate itself for removing/disinfecting worms and viruses apart from weeding out worms that attach themselves to browsers like Internet Explorer. It can also remove "invalid" and

"dead links" inside the registry, which often causes unnecessary warnings to fill up the Event Logs. One can add this utility to the startup list of programs on the computer so that it scans the computer every time you start using it.

New upgraded MWAV can be downloaded from the following links;
